Breast Cancer: Statistics.

The 5-year survival rate indicates the percentage of people who survive at least 5 years after the cancer is detected. The term "percentage" means how many people in 100. The average 5-year survival rate of people with breast cancer is 90%. The 10-year average survival rate is 83%.

If the cancer is found only in the breast, the relative 5-year survival rate of people with breast cancer is 99%. At this stage, sixty-one percent (61%) of the cases are diagnosed. If the cancer has spread to the regional lymph nodes, the 5-year survival rate is 85%. If the cancer has spread to a distant part of the body, the 5-year survival rate is 26%.

Breast cancer is the second most common cause of cancer death in women in the United States after lung cancer. However, since 1989, the number of women dying from breast cancer has declined steadily thanks to early detection and improvements in treatment.

Currently, there are approximately 3 million women living with breast cancer in the United States.

Statistics adapted from the publication of the American Cancer Society, Cancer Facts & Figures 2017 and the National Cancer Institute's Surveillance Epidemiology and End Results (SEER) .

Looking Into 2017: Plans & Programming

As we enter the New Year, we're excited to continue growing and expanding our programs to further our mission of ensuring that all people impacted by cancer are empowered by knowledge, strengthened by action, and sustained by community – so that no one faces cancer alone.

In 2017, we are focusing on innovating and invigorating our programs, which will expand and increase the sense of community for our participants. Across each program area, including Individual and Group Support, Health & Wellness, Nutrition, Education, and Social Connections; CSCCNJ will introduce fun, new workshops and classes that continue to keep the patient and their family members at the center of care and support.

This year, we also plan to enhance the types of programs offered to families under a new umbrella of programming called Support4Families. Across the developmental spectrum, CSCCNJ will be able to provide these families with access to experts delivering programs and support services across the pillars mentioned above. Programs including school-based support groups, family outings, and exclusive events will reduce isolation and stress and enhance empowerment in families through these increased social connections.

We are looking forward to experiencing these new programs together, with our participants!

Planned Giving

A planned gift is another way to make a donation to Cancer Support Community. It allows you to use your assets during your lifetime by making a commitment that will touch the lives of countless individuals and families affected by cancer. Planned giving is a way in which anyone can make a difference.

Many supporters of Cancer Support Community have chosen to include us in their wills, ensuring that our programs of support will be available for years to come. Should you choose to join them, you will be recognized as part of our Legacy Society in publications and by invitation to events. Of course, planned gifts can always be handled anonymously.

For more information about Planned Giving, please email Karla Wallack in our Development Office, or call 908 658 5400 ext 103

Open to Options®

Making a decision about cancer treatment can be an overwhelming experience. Important decisions need to be made about treatment for new or recurrent cancer, as well as ending treatment. Sometimes it is hard to know what questions to ask the doctor. If you were recently diagnosed with a new or recurrent cancer, we can assist you as you prepare for upcoming oncology visits. Our Open to Options® Program helps you communicate clearly with your medical team, ask critical questions about your options, and helps you to ensure that your treatment decisions fit your personal hopes and goals.

Cancer Support Source (CSS)®

87% of individuals report significant stress as a result of a cancer diagnosis. Through Cancer Support Source®, our validated distress screening tool, you will be able to connect with the CSCCNJ programs and resources that can make a difference.

If you or a family member have recently been diagnosed or had a recurrence, please call 908 658 5400 or email Jill Kaplan, Program Director, to make an appointment.
